ABOUT OUR GIRLS—AND BOYS

In the last issue of the Mirror I read an article about protecting our girls. How about our boys? How about these parents who allow their little boys to play marbles for keeps, thereby teaching them the art (?) of gambling? How about these mothers who let their girls go skating without either father, mother or older good woman to look after them? Also how about girls chasing through the woods on a so-called possum hunt, with any kind of boy companions who choose to go, and no father or mother along to see that there is no loitering behind of any of the crowd? Mothers, did you ever stop to think of the real awful dangers you put your girl into in allowing them to run half wild? Remember, God will hold you accountable for your children's actions.

How many mothers know where their children are or who they are with EVERY night?

Now, I hear every one say: "O, my girls won't do so, like Mrs. So and So's girls." There is where you are mistaken. Those are just the girls who do go wrong. We can't be too careful of our girls. And God pity the poor boys whose father doesn't make a comrade and chum of his son or sons. Fathers, won't you wake up and be a CHUM with your boys? You can teach them all they want to know much better than the rake who is always looking for a chance to poison their minds.

Last but not least, we should know well if the teachers for our young men and women are of good, moral characters or not. They have our children under their care so many hours and, of course, influence them to a certain extent. Parents, wake up and look after your own boys and girls before they are ruined by your carelessness and bring you to disgrace for life.
